Block Energy kicks off well work-over programme at Norio oil field

Block Energy Plc (LON:BLOCK) has kicked off a programme of well work-overs at the Norio oil field, in the Republic of Georgia, where it intends to scale up production rapidly before the end of this year.

It plans to carry out two work-over programmes, one through late 2018 and one in the first quarter of 2019.

The current programme begins with the preparation of four of eight existing wells before new perforation technology will bypass any damage caused by historic heavy mud drilling.

New or refurbished pumps will be installed to bring the wells to production.

Each well work-over is expected to take five to seven days to complete. Four well work-overs are scheduled for the first programme.

"The commencement of our operations today is the culmination of a great deal of hard work by the team and the gateway to an exciting future for the company and our stakeholders," said Paul Haywood, Block chief executive.

"Our Georgian operations are already cashflow positive, producing 15 bopd. Increasing our production ten-fold would, at current oil prices, create a highly cash generative platform for Block."

"And with 608 bcf of gross unrisksed contingent resources at West Rustavi, we are well placed to realise our objective to establish Block as Georgia's leading independent oil and gas company."

"We look forward to maintaining a high impact news flow as our work programme progresses over the coming weeks and months."

It is anticipated that the eight well work-overs will lift Norio's production to around 150 barrels of oil per day, from the present level of 10 bopd. Norio is 100% owned by Block and it is presently estimated to have 1.63mln barrels of proven oil reserves.

Also, Block Energy is preparing to drill horizontal sidetracks from existing wells at the West Rustavi field with the programme set to increase the company's stake in the venture to 75% from 25%.
