Juniper deal opens big market for Corero, says CEO Stephenson

Ashley Stephenson, boss of cyber security specialist Corero Networks PLC (LON:CNS), expects the recent tie-up with US giant Juniper to have a marked impact on sales.

Corero's software protects against denial of service (Ddos) cyber attacks, a market that continues to grow both in number and scale, he tells Proactive.

Customers appreciate they need protection and through this deal Corero can supply its tech to Juniper 's network.

Overall, costs are reducing, revenue is growing and more customers are being signed and this will lead the business to profitability.

It's inevitable, he says.
