Shefa Yamim's Carmeltazite officially recognised as new and rare mineral

Shefa Yamim ATM LTD's (LSE:SEFA) James Campbell tells Proactive London's Andrew Scott that carmeltazite, a mineral found in one of the gemstones from their Mount Carmel property in Israel has been recognised and approved as a new mineral by the International Mineralogical Association.

The new mineral, first discovered by Shefa Yamim, got its name due to the location of the discovery on Mount Carmel, and due to its major chemical components - titanium, aluminium and zirconium.

Campbell also updates on the work that's being carried out in Zone One towards the start of trial mining later this year.
