Tim Sharpington, the company's senior independent director for the last six years, will step down at the end of the current financial year.

His role as senior independent director and head of the remuneration committee will be assumed by Mark Warne.

Following the changes, IXICO will have two executive directors and three non-execs.

Chief executive Giulio Cerroni said: "Grant's appointment to the board reflects the substantial contribution he has already made to IXICO since his appointment as CFO.

"He has brought strong financial leadership skills combined with a deep appreciation of operational excellence at a time of significant revenue growth and an accelerated path to profitability.

"Separately, I would like to thank Tim for all his counsel and guidance to me personally since I joined the company and wish him well for the future."
