- Abujar?Gludehi (AG) deposit and the smaller Abujar Pischon?Golikro (APG) deposit.

Confidence in the resource has also increased so that 40% of the deposit is in the indicated category.

A high?grade section of the AG resource is now 4,000 ounces a vertical metre.

The company views the high-grade resource as enough to support a high-margin open-pit mining operation.

Metallurgical test work has indicated high gold recovery could be achieved from ore at the project using conventional carbon-in-leach (CIL) extraction methods for significant low-cost gravity recovery.

What are Tietto Minerals' next steps?

The company's focus for 2020 is to undertake more drilling and target continued resource inventory growth.

Tietto Minerals managing director Dr Caigen Wang said, "We will be very busy in 2020 as our fleet of four company drill rigs are on track to deliver 50,000 metres or more of drilling by Q3 2020, doubling all drilling at Abujar to date, as we target continuing rapid growth in our gold resource inventory.

"Gold mineralisation at AG and APG remains open and we will continue with our aggressive resource definition drilling as well as testing new targets over the 70-kilometre strike of the largely-untested Abujar gold corridor."

Three drill rigs are being deployed at the project in the latest 50,000-metre drilling campaign expected to extend into the March 2020 quarter.
